

BREXIT: aplazamiento ENS

Por la presente, informamos de la autoridad aduanera de Reino Unido (HMRC), ha anunciado una prórroga para la exención del requisito de la declaración de seguridad y protección (ENS) para las mercancías importadas de la UE. La nueva fecha de aplicación se ha trasladado del 31 de octubre de 2024 al 31 de enero de 2025.

La aplicación de un conjunto reducido de datos de la declaración ENS y la primera versión de la Ventanilla Única para apoyar la funcionalidad de Seguridad y Protección también se han pospuesto hasta el 31 de enero de 2025.

A continuación facilitamos la comunicación recibida por CLECAT al respecto:

As you will be aware, the previous Government intended to end the waiver for Safety and Security (S&S) declarations on EU imports from 31 October 2024.

The announcement of the General Election in May meant that our planned S&S engagement to prepare stakeholders for implementation on this date was not able to start, due to the restrictions on communication activity during the pre-election period. Since the new Government was appointed, we have been working closely with Ministers to review plans for the introduction of Safety & Security declarations for EU imports, as well as listening to industry about the time it will take to prepare.

As a result, we are announcing today that S&S declarations for EU imports will now be introduced on 31 January 2025. We recognise that some businesses will be ready to start submitting declarations for EU imports earlier than this – for example because they already submit declarations for RoW imports. Those who are ready to start submitting their declarations ahead of this date are encouraged to do so.

We will publish further information in the coming weeks and will reach out over the next week to key stakeholders to start arranging more detailed engagement sessions, including to support readiness activity
